But the report warns of 'gaps' in opportunities for people who don't do well at school. In a research paper entitled 'Cognitive Skills and Employment Success: The Role of Education', the report says: "Education is an important determinant of cognitive skills, and this in turn appears to predict future employment and earnings." Cognitive skills refers to how well a person learns information. Education, the report states, is "the primary mechanism by which people acquire cognitive skills." The research was presented at the Annual Conference of the European Economic Association (EEA) in Paris this week. Significant differences in economic outcomes in the UK are observed between people with high and low levels of cognitive skills, the researchers find. For example, in 2011, people with the lowest cognitive skills in the UK were three times more likely to live in households with low income and/or high levels of material deprivation than those with high cognitive skills. It is also found that higher levels of cognitive skills are associated with high levels of employment and high earnings, Enzymatic reduction of nitrate to nitrite catalyzed by the serine protease trypsin. Trypsin has been shown to catalyze the reduction of nitrate to nitrite. The reaction is non-specific, involving a series of one-electron-reductions of the nitrogen in the nitrate moiety to nitrite. The reactions depend on the presence of sulfhydryl groups in trypsin, which can be reduced by nitrite or nitrite-derived anions. The formation of the nitrite ion is essential for the formation of NO, since the reaction proceeds in the presence of TEMPO but not in the presence of sodium azide. The fact that sulfhydryl groups are involved in the reaction implies that the mechanism involves the formation of a protein-bound oxidized disulfide as the first step.

About Me Sunday, December 4, 2010 Dr. Nabi Azad, who in the past year or so has become a featured headliner at the renowned Timewell Internationals in Lahore, is bringing his music to some of the most prestigious theaters in the United States. With shows in seven cities in five states, in November he's performing at Lincoln Center's Alice Tully Hall in New York. "It's a great honor to be invited to perform at a venue such as Alice Tully Hall," says Azad, who will perform several of his songs from his latest CD, Shabana (a.k.a. Sufi Love Songs) on December 11. "We look forward to making new music-lovers across the country hear some of my great songs that they may have missed." Before he began singing professionally, Azad was an electrical engineer at the National Institutes of Health. "I did get my Bachelors in Electrical Engineering," he says, "but what kept me going in the field were
