However, for some reason, the program has been removed from the download page, possibly due to a bug. The new version of Yahoo Mail for Mac OS X was released last week, and it brings quite a few enhancements and improved features with it, including the new layout. If you are still working with the Mac release that was released last year, we recommend that you upgrade to the latest version. The latest release of Yahoo Mail for Mac comes in a shiny new, solid aqua and cocoa-based design that makes it look a bit more professional. The new look of the program is maintained in the new version of the Mac client. In addition to the new look, the Yahoo Mail for Mac program has been quite a bit more feature-rich and stable than the previous version. EverNote 2.0_Advertisement This month we have upgraded EverNote 2.0 to a completely new code-base (version 2.0.2). This new code base is based on the latest edition of Apple's Mac OS X (10.6.4). The latest version of EverNote 2.0 brings the following enhancements and bug fixes. Improved File Handling EverNote 2.0 has an improved file handling to allow more robust support for a larger number of file types. The "Import Notes" dialog now understands the notion of "XML Notebook" and can be used to import notes from other EverNote 2.0 users. It can import notes from the "Preferences" dialog when you have clicked on the "Import Notes" button in the recent notes list in the sidebar. Larger file size is also accepted, and the notes
