Why You Should Install Spam-Firewall Today: Over recent years, the Internet has been inundated by online attackers such as hackers, cyber-criminals, and viruses who are out to steal your personal data and money. All day long, you can be bombarded by requests to enter your password, to activate or recover your account, and make transactions. The chances are that you have received a number of emails that claimed to be from your bank, asking you to confirm your account. You are also very likely to receive emails asking you to confirm your email account, update your password or reactivate your account. These requests have been created by these online attackers who are not just after your login details, but also your money. The attackers set up malicious software that is disguised as a “phishing” email, which, instead of asking you for your login details, appears to be from your bank, a popular email service provider or your Internet service provider (ISP). They may even claim that your account has been locked and ask you to confirm your password. Most people don’t recognise these emails as fraudulent and confirm their login details. After entering their login details, the attackers steal their money and personal information and can do all kinds of illegal transactions through the account. This is the reason why it is so important to be aware of the emails that you receive, and to take the necessary precautions to avoid falling victim to such crimes. Spam-Firewall is a software that can be used to protect your computer from such online attackers. In its native configuration, the software blocks
